To All:

According to my records there was an industry spill within archaeology site LA 86196. At that time the site was considered significant to protect. Because of the event the archaeology site was recently updated by a contract archaeology firm.

After review of the report, both the New Mexico Historic Preservation Office and the BLM agreed archaeology site LA 86196 no longer merits protection status. The downgrade of the site protection is not related to the spill but from other earlier independent events.

In sum, the archaeology staff has no concerns concerning the remediation methods within archaeology site LA 86196.
