FOREST SERVICE

The Forest Service is a part of the Department of Agriculture, and is responsible for the management of the national forests. The Service is organized into several divisions, each of which is responsible for a specific aspect of the Service's work. The divisions are: the Division of Forestry, the Division of Forest Management, the Division of Forest Economics, the Division of Forest Research, the Division of Forest Education, and the Division of Forest Conservation. The Service is also responsible for the management of the national parks and monuments, and for the protection of the wildlife and fish resources of the United States.
