COMMISSION ON THE STATUS OF WOMEN
IN THE UNITED STATES
REPORT

CHAPTER I

Introduction

1. The Commission was established by the President in 1961 to study the status of women in the United States and to report to the President and the Congress. The Commission has since that time held numerous public hearings and has received many suggestions from women and men in all walks of life. The Commission's report is based on the information received from these sources and on the Commission's own studies.

2. The Commission's report is divided into two parts. The first part deals with the status of women in the United States and the second part deals with the status of women in other countries.

The first part of the report is divided into four chapters. Chapter I deals with the status of women in the United States. Chapter II deals with the status of women in other countries. Chapter III deals with the status of women in the United States and Chapter IV deals with the status of women in other countries.

3. The Commission's report is based on the information received from these sources and on the Commission's own studies.

4. The Commission's report is based on the information received from these sources and on the Commission's own studies.

5. The Commission's report is based on the information received from these sources and on the Commission's own studies.

6. The Commission's report is based on the information received from these sources and on the Commission's own studies.
