The data collected during the study shows a clear trend of increasing temperature and humidity over time. The wind speed and direction also show a consistent pattern, with the wind blowing from the southeast at an increasing speed. The cloud cover and visibility remained constant throughout the study.

The results of the study indicate that the weather conditions were generally favorable for the study. The data collected during the study shows a clear trend of increasing temperature and humidity over time. The wind speed and direction also show a consistent pattern, with the wind blowing from the southeast at an increasing speed. The cloud cover and visibility remained constant throughout the study.
