The figure consists of two separate line graphs. The left graph has a y-axis labeled 'Rate of reaction' and an x-axis labeled 'Temperature'. A single curve starts at a low rate at low temperature and rises steeply as temperature increases. The right graph also has a y-axis labeled 'Rate of reaction' and an x-axis labeled 'Temperature'. It shows two curves: one solid line and one dashed line. Both curves start at a low rate at low temperature and rise as temperature increases, with the solid line consistently above the dashed line.
