Dear Mr. Porter:

On February 14, 1963 a bradenhead test was conducted on the above well by Commission personnel and definite indication of casing failure was established. On February 26, 1963 we wrote the operator directing that they take immediate steps to repair the well. On March 11, 1963 the operator responded, stating that it was their intention to take action within the next several weeks. During the next month two or three drilling contractors did stop by our office to discuss proposed remedial methods. They indicated that they had been directed to do so by the operator; however no Form G-102 was ever filed for approval. On June 19, 1963 we again wrote the operator demanding that remedial action be commenced. On June 27, 1963 the operator wrote stating that an associate was out of the country and would not be back until the 22nd of July and that it was impossible for them to make a decision without the concurrence of the associate. We granted an extension of time to July 25, by which time the operator without fail was to file Form G-102 setting out remedial plans for the well and actual work was to commence prior to August 1.

We have had no further correspondence from the operator and I am therefore recommending that the matter be set for hearing at the earliest possible time in order that the operator may show cause why the well should not be
