Due to the configuration of the Gas Company of New Mexico pipeline we are unable to produce this unless the Navajo power plant is using gas in its' scrubber system. I have had an ongoing dialog with Tim O' Brien of GCNM's regional office in Albuquerque and he assures me this situation will change. Either the power plant will switch to a more predictable schedule or the pipeline will be able to reverse flow long enough each month for us t profitably produce this well. In addition to this the well is cabable of sustained oil production if the proper remedial work is done. Greenwood has been waiting for either GCNM to begin taking gas or an increase and stabilization of oil prices before undertaking the necessary remedial work.
