REPORT OF THE COMMISSION ON THE STATUS OF WOMEN

UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

The Commission on the Status of Women was established by the House of Representatives on August 12, 1950, and by the Senate on September 1, 1950. It was the first such commission in the history of the United States. The Commission was created to study and report on the status of women in the United States, and to recommend ways to improve it. The Commission has held numerous public hearings and has received many suggestions from women and men. It has also conducted extensive research and has prepared a report on the status of women in the United States. This report is the first of a series of reports that the Commission will prepare. It is hoped that these reports will help to bring about a more equal status for women in the United States.

The Commission has been very busy since it was established. It has held many public hearings and has received many suggestions from women and men. It has also conducted extensive research and has prepared a report on the status of women in the United States. This report is the first of a series of reports that the Commission will prepare.
