SUMMARY OF COMMUNICATIONS

Sybil Blackman Carney

 Well proposals were sent to multiple addresses that were obtained from public and subscription based search engines. Follow-up voicemails have been left on multiple occasions with the phone number found from the same search engines requesting for a return phone call. No calls or voicemails have been returned to date. Accounting has indicated this partner has stopped paying JIBs for existing wells for over two years.

Dr. Robert A. Cahan and Bernice A. Cahan

 Well proposals were sent to multiple addresses that were obtained from public and subscription based search engines. Follow-up voicemails have been left on multiple occasions with the phone number found from the same search engines requesting for a return phone call. No calls or voicemails have been returned to date. Accounting has indicated this partner has stopped paying JIBs for existing wells for over two years.

Rohel, Inc.

- Multiple phone calls and emails between Patti Brew of Rohoel, Inc and MRC Delaware Resources, LLC landman Jeff Lierly.
- MRC submitted various offers to purchase interest.
- December 22, 2015: Patt Brew indicated she was going to propose assignment and get back with Jeff Lierly.
- Since then follow-up emails, phone calls have been left with Patti requesting an update and to notify them that we would still like to work out a deal, although their interest might be subject to our compulsory pooling order.

Nearburg Exploration Co., L.L.C.

- MRC's Jeff Lierly has had multiple phone calls, conference calls with technical discussions with Nearburg explaining line item costs, targets, and prospectively in this area. MRC has proposed numerous deal structures to Nearburg, all of which have been rejected.
- Upon receiving the compulsory pooling notification, Nearburg proposed a trade to MRC.
 MRC and Nearburg continue to negotiate terms and conditions of the proposed trade.