

A dark blue textured book cover with a horizontal row of 24 small, light-colored rectangular labels along the bottom edge. The labels are arranged in a single row and appear to be made of a different material, possibly paper or a different type of plastic, than the cover itself. They are evenly spaced and have a slightly irregular, hand-made appearance. The cover has a fine, woven texture and a deep blue color. The labels are a light, off-white or cream color, providing a strong contrast to the dark blue background. The overall design is simple and functional, typical of a library or archival binding.
