Steps in Pilot Area Simulation

- 1) Identify areas for pilot projects and simulation. Criteria used to high-grade areas where: Low values of psi/year drop, range of well economics, BR operated.
- 2) Gather data to use in simulation. Drill POW wells and gather zonal pressures, digitize all logs, production, pressure, and core information in area.
- 3) Build 3D geological model using all logs and core data. Visit outcrops to help constrain Menefee interpretations. Build geostatistical model using all data to define variograms and constrain interpretations at wells. Also use statistical distribution of facies, porosity, net pay, and permeability in model. Used Geoquest, Geomath, and RC2 as consultants in building these models.
- 4) Upscale geological model to simulator scale of 19 layers and 333' average grid cell size.
- 5) Using Eclipse simulator history match 40 years production and pressures. Used Geoquest and Malkewicz & Hueni as consultants for simulation.
- 6) Forecast future production and the impact of increased density drilling.

RE: Application to Change Rules for San Juan Mesaverde Pool

El Paso Field Services Company, an owner and operator of significant natural gas gathering and processing assets in and around New Mexico's San Juan basin production area, is in full support of the rules changes as proposed by Burlington Resources and others pertaining to the Blanco Mesaverde Pool in Rio Arriba and San Juan Counties, NM as outlined in the attached notice and application.

Currently, El Paso Field Services Company and its parent company, El Paso Energy Corporation, employ 296 persons in the state of New Mexico. Of these, 187 are El Paso Field Services employees associated with operations located in the San Juan basin area. El Paso Energy Corporation also owns the only fully integrated coast-to-coast regulated gas transmission system through its El Paso Natural Gas and Tennessee Gas Pipeline Companies. Its marketing subsidiary, El Paso Energy Marketing Company, is one of the largest providers of merchant services in the natural gas industry, while El Paso International Company is a leading developer of energy infrastructure projects around the world. In 1997, El Paso Energy Corporation had revenues of $5.6 billion and assets totaling $9.5 billion.

El Paso Energy's presence and experience in the San Juan basin extends back to the 1950's. Since that time, our company has played a leading role in the development of the basin as a primary gatherer, conditioner and processor of gas. In addition, El Paso Natural Gas Company has been a longtime provider of gas transportation services for San Juan production to both eastward and westward downstream markets. In January of 1996, El Paso's gathering, conditioning and processing assets were spun down into a new non-jurisdictional midstream unit, El Paso Field Services Company, where they reside today.

El Paso Field Services currently owns and operates approximately 5,500 miles of pipeline and has facilities covering over 9,300 wells (5,500 of which have electronic flow meters) in the San Juan basin area. Our company provides a full range of midstream services including compression, treating, conditioning and NGL extraction for the over 1 Bcf of gas gathered on our system daily. We strive to provide our customers high quality service, technical expertise, access to the best downstream markets, and a willingness to deploy capital into new facilities.

Over the past three years, El Paso Field Services has spent over $750 million expanding existing assets, as well as acquiring new assets, in an effort to provide the capabilities that we believe our customers require to succeed. Of this, over $190 million has been deployed in the San Juan basin. In 1996, the company spent $80 million to expand and upgrade its existing Chaco gas processing plant. The result is a state-of-the-art cryogenic plant that will be capable of processing as much as 650 MMcf of natural gas per day by early 1999. Not only has this plant allowed our San Juan customers to expand their production over the last several years, its ability to extract 93% of ethane and 100% of all other liquids has allowed them to realize increased economic value from their production efforts.

El Paso Field Services also spent over $50 million on our recently completed Global Compression Project, whereby we installed approximately 40,000 H.P. of compression (36,000 electric-driven) and 54 miles of field piping to reduce wellhead pressures to below 150 psig on 70% of our system. This project is expected to increase production by approximately 130 MMcf per day, while extending the life of the basin. An additional $60 million in capital has been spent by our company on additional compression, piping, electronic metering and treating assets. In total, these projects clearly demonstrate El Paso Fields Services' commitment to grow with our San Juan customers and deliver the capabilities they need to succeed.

El Paso Field Services has worked closely with Burlington Resources and other producers in the San Juan basin over the last several months to develop a sound understanding of the impact that the proposed rules changes will have on the gathering and processing capacity needs in the basin. Our position is that our company is prepared to economically expand our gathering and processing capabilities in the San Juan basin to ensure that the incremental gas resulting from the proposed rules changes can be gathered, processed and transported to downstream markets. In fact, in part due to an effort to prepare for the possible rules changes, our company has already begun work to expand our Chaco cryogenic plant to significantly increase summertime processing capacity. In addition, we have performed studies and developed plans relating to further expansion of both our plant and field assets, and are prepared to move forward with these plans as production levels warrant.

As with all El Paso Field Services operations, any future system expansions will be performed in manners consistent with the highest environmental and personal safety standards. El Paso Energy has a long history of working closely with the New Mexico and San Juan basin community to ensure that inconveniences are minimized, while economic and social benefits are maximized through opportunities of this nature. Likewise, we remain confident that Burlington Resources will also continue to adhere to these same high environmental and personal safety standards, while providing enhanced opportunities for the entire San Juan basin community.

From El Paso's perspective, the increased production activities resulting from the proposed rules changes will have a favorable economic impact on the San Juan community, as well as our company, employees and shareholders. As part of El Paso Field Services' past expansion efforts, we have employed the services of numerous private and public entities ranging from pipeline and plant contractors to public utility providers. We are fully committed to continuing to partner with these and other New Mexico entities as we expand our capabilities in the future.

We also believe that Burlington Resources has done an thorough job of providing us and others with the information necessary to evaluate the impact of the proposed rules changes. We have worked closely with Burlington Resource's technical, production and commercial representatives to understand the various aspects and implications of the proposed rules changes. Throughout this process, we have found that Burlington Resources studies and conclusions have been performed and developed with high degrees of credibility, professionalism and integrity. Based upon our review of the information, our belief is that the proposed rules changes will be beneficial to the basin's producers.

October 22, 1998

In closing, and for the reasons outlined above, El Paso Field Services believes that approval of the proposed rules changes as drafted by Burlington Resources and attached herein will have a positive impact on the State of New Mexico, the public and private sector entities operating in and around the San Juan production area, and the San Juan basin community as a whole. We therefore support the proposed rules as drafted.

Sincerely,

IN THE MATTER OF THE HEARING
CALLED BY THE OIL CONSERVATION
DIVISION FOR THE PURPOSE OF CONSIDERING:

CASE NO. 12069

APPLICATION OF

Burlington Resources Oil & Gas Company to increase the vertical limits, provide for notice requirements, establish administrative procedures, amend special Pool rule 2(b) and adopt new Special Pool rules 2(c) and 3 for the Blanco-Mesa Verde Gas Pool for purposes of increasing well density and changing well location requirements for Mesa Verde wells, Rio Arriba and San Juan Counties, New Mexico.

PRE-HEARING STATEMENT

Williams Energy Services (formerly Williams Field Services) as agent for Williams Gas Processing Company, Williams Gas Processing – Blanco and Williams Field Services Company (collectively "Williams") files testimony in support of Burlington Resources Oil & Gas Company's ("Burlington") filing before the New Mexico Oil Conservation Division ("OCD") to request an increase in vertical limits for the Blanco Mesa Verde Gas Pool and to increase the well density and/or well location requirements for the Mesa Verde wells located in Rio Arriba and San Juan Counties, New Mexico. Williams files this testimony as an interested and involved party whose interests cannot be represented by any other party.

Williams chooses to go on record in support of Burlington's filing and encourages the OCD to expeditiously approve this request.

Williams performs gathering, processing and treating in the San Juan Basin under long term contracts for many producers. On a typical day Williams gathers and processes approximately 750 MMcfd of conventional wellhead gas production on its Ignacio, Kutz and Lybrook systems. Williams also gathers and treats in excess of 875 MMcfd of coal seam production on its Manzanares System.

Williams, and its predecessors, have invested hundreds of millions of dollars to develop systems and facilities to meet the need of the producers in the San Juan Basin for over forty years. The services provided include wellhead gathering lines, major trunk lines, compressor stations and dehydration, treating and processing facilities.

Through its many years of service to the producing community, Williams has developed the facilities necessary to meet production levels as the reserves have been developed. An example of Williams' capability and desire to meet the producers needs, Williams began in 1990 to develop the Manzanares coal seam gas gathering and treating system. The initial production estimates were to peak at 350 MMcfd. The system was designed and built to meet this need. As the producers developed the reserves, it became clear that the volumes would exceed these initial estimates. Consequently, Williams, based on the producers' estimates for production, expanded the Manzanares System several times to meet the production. This system has grown to a capacity of nearly 1.1 Bcfd of gathering and treating capacity. With the coal seam volumes now on the decline, Williams continues to work with producers to lower the pressures on the system to optimize the production.

In the last two years on the Ignacio System alone, Williams has installed approximately forty (40)778 miles of gathering system pipeline to loop various constrained areas of its gathering systems and has placed in service over thirty-four (34) thousand horsepower of new compression to reduce gathering system pressures. Additional looping and horsepower have also been installed on the Kutz, Lybrook and Manzanares systems.

Williams is currently expanding its Ignacio Plant complex from a capacity of 350 MMcfd to 450 MMcfd. This expansion will not only increase the plant capacity by 100 MMcfd but will also increase liquid recovery efficiency for ethane from approximately eighty (80) percent to ninety-three (93) percent. This expansion is to meet the needs of the increase production that is currently being developed.

Coal seam volumes in the San Juan Basin have peaked and are now declining. The natural gas infrastructure (gathering, treating and mainlines) that was developed to handle the large supply of coal seam gas will soon begin to have excess capacity. Coal seam gas declines are estimated to average in the seventeen (17) to twenty (20) percent range.

Development of new conventional gas reserves will fit nicely to help stem the decline of coal seam gas reserves. The approval of the Mesa Verde formation infill development will play a key roll in slowing the production decline that is occurring in the San Juan Basin.

Williams is willing to make economically justified investments to further expand its gathering and processing facilities to meet the production growth from this infill-drilling potential. Williams will work with the producers to put agreements in place to build the facilities as the producers develop gas.

Very truly yours,

Evan Hanson
Manager - Commercial Operations
