Good morning Dean,

That is exactly right, we adjusted the forecasts to better honor the rates we observed post-job.

Thanks,

Ray,

It appears that the estimated reserves have changed on the last 3 of the 4 wells listed below. I'm presuming that perhaps once the well was bought into production, its behavior deviated from projections and led to the recalculation that resulted in this new proposed allocation, but am looking to have that confirmed. I only need a high level statement regarding the reason for the allocation change rather than anything in depth.

Please reference each of the wells below for which the statement you provide is for.

Kandis,

Reviewing the proposed amended allocation for the San Juan 28-6 Unit #99N (30-039-08141) submitted under Action ID: 149277; it looks like the new fixed percentage for oil is due to a drastic change in estimated remaining reserves for the Dakota formation from what was submitted in the original application. Please provide a very brief description for this change. An example being that perhaps new data has been gathered and the calculated reserves was adjusted accordingly or perhaps a typo was made in the original application.
