COMMISSION ON THE STATUS OF WOMEN
IN THE AMERICAN SOUTH
1964-1965

...the Commission on the Status of Women in the American South, 1964-1965, was organized to study the status of women in the Southern States. The Commission was composed of representatives from the Federal Government, the States, and the private sector. Its primary concern was to identify the problems facing women in the South and to recommend ways to improve their status. The Commission held numerous public hearings and conducted extensive research. Its findings were presented in a series of reports, which were widely distributed. The Commission's work was instrumental in bringing national attention to the issues facing women in the South and in promoting legislative and administrative reforms. The Commission's report, "The Status of Women in the American South, 1964-1965," is a landmark document in the history of the women's movement in the United States. It provides a comprehensive overview of the status of women in the South and offers a blueprint for action. The Commission's work was a significant contribution to the advancement of women's rights and the promotion of equality in the Southern States.
