Todd:

Hi.

Okay, so what NM Oil and Gas Facilities are the pipelines associated with?

Carl, apologize this plan is concentrating on the 164.2 miles of gathering lines in NM and TX that deliver the gas to the Jal #3 plant for processing. The purpose of the Jal Interstate plan is to aid in the response a release from the pipeline system. The Jal #3 Plant plan is used for any release we have the plant itself.

Just wanted to make sure that Section 4.2 below is accurate? Please confirm for all ROE maps submitted that the flow rate of 18,000 MCFD and [H2S] is 80,000 ppm.

That is correct

OCD requires accurate ROEs. OCD does not want to alarm communities unnecessarily and there are requirements (see checklist”) that may be more intensive to address?

I understand and the ROE 's are calculated to the above mentioned

4.2 Jal Interstate System - Radius of Exposure

The volume used as the worst-case scenario escape route for the plant and pipeline is based on total escape of the maximum daily process rate of 18,000 MCFD from the piping that will contain 80,000 ppm of H₂S. This scenario is based on the unexpected release from a section of pipeline in the field. This is the worst-case scenario and the information is provided below in Table 4.2.1. Maps showing the worst-case ROE and public areas is provided in Appendix B.

Table 4.2.1 Jal Interstate System - Worst Case Scenario

Description	Equation	Radius of Exposure (ROE)
100 ppm Equation	$X^* = [(1.589)(0.08^{})(18,000,000^{})]^{0.6258}$	X = 9,545 ft
500 ppm Equation	$X^* = [(0.4546)(0.08^{})(18,000,000^{})]^{0.6258}$	X = 4,362 ft

*Radius of exposure (ft)

*Mole fraction has been converted to a straight fraction for a more conservative number

Maximum volume determined to be available for escape (ft³)

Based on the data in Table 4.2.1 above, the 500 ppm ROE is in excess of 50 feet and includes public areas. These areas have been identified and are included in Table 4.4.2 and on the maps located in Appendix B of this plan. A list of public roads is identified in Table 4.4.3. The pipeline team and facility representatives are equipped with safety devices, such as H₂S monitors, to detect the escape of H₂S.Page

Mr. Folse

Good morning!

Please find attached the New Mexico Oil Conservation Division (OCD) Hydrogen Sulfide Gas Contingency Plan (plan) Review “Checklist”

Based on a preliminary review of the plan, I need to know the following:

1. Is the pipeline system associated with the: H2S-045 Energy Transfer (formerly SUG) Jal #3 Gas Plant & AGI Facility? The introduction does not identify the facility that the gas gathering lines are associated with in NM or TX? OCD did receive a plan for this facility in June of 2020. If the gathering system is associated with this facility, OCD can file it under the "H2S-045" admin. record once it is officially accepted for record by the OCD.

The Jal Interstate System is a different gathering system not associated with the Jal #3 Plant.

2. Based on the ROE Maps with references to Unit #s, I need a table that displays the Pasquill-Gifford Air Dispersion Model flow rates and H2S Concentrations with ROE₁₀₀ and ROE₅₀₀ to verify the ROEs displayed in the NM ROE Maps are accurate.

Please refer to page 7 section 4.2 it describes the daily process rate at 18,000 MCFD with a concentration of 80,000 ppm.

Please review the checklist to see if Energy Transfer wants to make revisions based on the checklist.

Thank you.

1.0 Introduction

This is a Hydrogen Sulfide (H₂S) Contingency Plan for the Jal Interstate System located in Andrews, Culberson, Gaines, Loving, Reeves & Winkler County, Texas, along with Eddy & Lea County, New Mexico. The Jal Interstate System consists of approximately 164.2 miles of 2", 3", 4", 5", 6", 8", 10", 12", 14", 16", & 18" natural gas pipelines and is owned and operated by Energy Transfer. This system gathers natural gas from producing wells and small gathering systems in the area to be delivered to the Energy Transfer Jal Plant for processing. The system is designed to transport 18,000 cubic feet per day (MCFD) of natural gas that will contain 80,000 parts per million (ppm) H₂S.

This plan provides guidelines to assist in responding and managing an emergency in the event of an H₂S release from this pipeline system. The Plan will be activated prior to an intentional release, or immediately upon the detection of an accidental release of a potentially hazardous volume of H₂S and should be reviewed before performing any duties inside the radius of exposure (ROE). This plan is in accordance with the Railroad Commission Statewide Rule 36 (Rule 36), Texas Commission on Environmental Quality (TCEQ) and the New Mexico (NMAC) Title 19, Chapter 15, Part 11, and any other applicable H₂S standards and regulations. An overview map of the pipeline system is provided in Appendix A and radius of exposure maps are located in Appendix B.

The following words and terms, when used in this plan, will follow meanings as stated in context of the Texas Rule 36 and New Mexico 19.15.11 NMAC regulations.

2.0 Chemical Properties

2.1 Properties of Hydrogen Sulfide

H₂S is a toxic, flammable gas, which occurs naturally in natural gas, and can be produced by the breakdown of organic matter. Characteristically, H₂S is heavier than air, colorless, soluble in water, and has a distinguishable rotten-egg odor. This odor cannot be used to detect H₂S because people rapidly lose their sense of smell when H₂S levels are above 100 ppm. The Department of Transportation (DOT) designates H₂S as a flammable gas and poison with identification number (I.D.) UN 1053. The National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH) states that 100 parts of H₂S per million parts of air (100 ppm) is Immediately Dangerous to Life and Health (IDLH) with effects on the respiratory, central nervous and cardiovascular systems. Exposure to more than 15 ppm for 20 minutes may irritate the eyes, nose and throat. No long-term health effects have been found for exposures less than 10 ppm; however, exposure to higher levels may be associated with reduced lung function and neurological effects, e.g. headache, nausea, depression.

Tables 2.1.1 and 2.1.2 provide the chemical and physical properties and the toxicological effects and exposure limits associated with H₂S, respectively.

Table 2.1.1 Chemical and Physical Properties of H₂S

Property	H ₂ S Information
Chemical Name	Hydrogen Sulfide (H ₂ S)
CAS Number	7783-06-4
Synonyms	Sulfurated hydrogen, hydrosulfuric acid, dihydrogen sulfide
Normal Physical State	Colorless gas, vapor density at 59°F (15°C) of 1.1895
Ignition Temperature	500°F (260°C)
Boiling Point	-76°F (-60.2°C)
Melting Point	-117.2°F (-82.9°C)
Flammable Limits	4.3 – 46% by volume in air
Solubility	Soluble in water and oil; solubility decreases as the fluid temperature increases
Combustibility	Burns with a blue flame to produce sulfur dioxide
Warning Properties	Has an unpleasant odor similar to the smell of rotten eggs. Detectable at low concentrations (0.0002 – 0.3 ppm). Due to paralyzing effect the gas has on the olfactory nerve at higher concentrations, the sense of smell is not an acceptable indicator.

Table 2.1.2 Toxicological Effects and Exposure Limits of H₂S

Concentration	H ₂ S Information
0.0002 – 0.3 ppm	Odor Threshold
1 ppm	ACGIH TLV TWA
5 ppm	ACGIH TLV STEL
1-20 ppm	Offensive odor, possible nausea, tearing of the eyes or headaches with prolonged exposure
10 ppm	NIOSH STEL (10 min)
20 ppm	OSHA PEL-C – Irritation of eyes, nose, throat and lung
50 ppm	Loss of sense of smell after about 15 or more minutes of exposure.
100 ppm	NIOSH IDLH – Severe eye, nose, throat and lung irritation. Respiratory, central nervous and cardiovascular system effects.
300 – 500 ppm	May cause unconsciousness and death in 1 to 4 hours
700 – 1000 ppm	May be rapidly fatal
43,000 ppm	Lower explosive limit (LEL)

2.2 Properties of Sulfur Dioxide

Sulfur dioxide (SO₂) is a severe irritant of the eyes, mucous membranes, and skin. Its irritant properties are due to the rapidity with which it forms sulphurous acid on contact with moist membranes. Characteristically, SO₂ is heavier than air, colorless, soluble in water, and has a distinguishable pungent odor. The Department of Transportation (DOT) designates SO₂ as a poison gas with an identification number of UN 1079. NIOSH states that 100 parts of SO₂ per million parts of air (100 ppm) is the IDLH with effects on the respiratory, central nervous and cardiovascular systems. Exposure to more than 6-12 ppm may irritate the eyes, nose and throat. No long-term health effects have been found for exposures less than 5 ppm; however, exposure to higher levels may be associated with reduced lung function and neurological effects, e.g. headache, nausea, depression.

Tables 2.2.1 and 2.2.2 below provide the chemical and physical properties and the toxicological effects and exposure limits associated with SO₂, respectively.

Table 2.2.1 Chemical and Physical Properties of SO₂

Property	SO ₂ Information
Chemical Name	Sulfur Dioxide (SO ₂)
CAS Number	7446-09-5
Synonyms	Sulfurous acid anhydride, Sulfurous oxide, Sulfur oxide
Normal Physical State	Colorless gas, vapor density at 32°F (0°C) of 2.264
Ignition Temperature	500°F (260°C)
Boiling Point	14°F (-10°C)
Melting Point	-103.9°F (-75.5°C)
Flammable Limits	Non-Flammable Gas
Solubility	Soluble in water, ethanol, diethyl ether, and chloroform
Combustibility	Non-Flammable Gas
Warning Properties	Colorless gas with a characteristic pungent odor and is a severe irritant of the eyes, mucous membranes, and the skin.

Table 2.2.2 Toxicological Effects and Exposure Limits of SO₂

Concentration	SO₂ Information
0.3 – 5 ppm	Odor Threshold
0.25 ppm	ACGIH TLV STEL
0.1 - 20 ppm	Offensive odor, possible nausea, tearing of the eyes or headaches with prolonged exposure
2 ppm	NIOSH REL TWA
5 ppm	OSHA TWA PEL – Irritation of eyes, nose, throat and lung NIOSH REL STEL
100 ppm	NIOSH IDLH – Severe eye, nose, throat and lung irritation. Respiratory, central nervous and cardiovascular system effects
400 – 500 ppm	May cause unconsciousness and death for even short period of exposure

3.0 General Provisions

Energy Transfer participates in an extensive annual Public Awareness Program and Damage Prevention Program. On an annual basis, Energy Transfer provides education programs to the Public Officials, Emergency Responders, Contractors, and the General Public in order to promote awareness of Energy Transfer pipeline facility locations. Energy Transfer underwrites these educational programs and uses various third party groups who specialize in these types of pipeline education programs. Energy Transfer attends these education programs to provide additional information to attendees and to monitor the effectiveness of the program.

3.1 Warning and Marker Provisions

There will be conditions met when applying warning and markers along the pipeline. Clearly visible warning signs will be posted along the pipeline right of way. Marker signs will contain sufficient information to establish the ownership, and will indicate, by the use of the words “Caution” and “Poison Gas,” that a potential danger exists and will be in compliance with the regulation of the Federal Department of Transportation. Signs will be prominently posted at reverent locations to sufficiently alert the public to potential dangers.

3.2 Security Provision

The above ground pipeline and plant will be protected from public access by fencing, gates, locks, and security at all times. All visitors are required to check-in before entering the plant.

3.3 Materials and Equipment Provisions

There will be general conditions met when applying to materials and equipment with the pipeline system. Construction of the pipelines are in accordance with all current industry standards to ensure all materials and equipment to be installed will be handled in such a way as not to induce sulfide stress cracking. In the event of a failure of any element of the pipeline as the result of H₂S stress cracking, a detailed written report of the failure will be forwarded to the Railroad Commission of Texas. For incidents in New Mexico, a full report of the incident will be submitted to the New Mexico Oil Conservation Division (OCD) within 15 day on Form C-141, following the release.

Compressor stations consist of high pressure discharge shutdown and low pressure shutdown which varies. Compressor stations also contain relief valves and onsite or available flares with capacity up to 2 mmscf/d.

In addition, the compressor stations contain portable fire extinguishers which are located throughout the facility at key locations. Two (2) bottle cascade system capable of working one (1) man with backup for 16 hours are located where needed. This is primarily used when performing maintenance work on the compressor units, however, they can also be used during an emergency, if required.

Monitoring techniques and procedures, including, but not limited to, visual observation, portable detection equipment, and fixed monitoring equipment, have been employed to detect leaks. Process monitoring devices, such as pressure and flow rate sensors, are monitored to determine if a condition which requires corrective action exists. The Jal Interstate System is monitored continuously via a supervisory control and data acquisition (SCADA) monitoring system. Inspections of the system, and related equipment, are scheduled and performed regularly. Pigging operations are performed on a routine basis for this pipeline system.

Manual block valves along the pipelines may be utilized to isolate any section of the pipeline during an incident, if safe to do so. The system also contains pressure relief valves at all facilities and Emergency Shutdown Valves (ESV). The plant operator and/or Incident Commander (IC) may use any of these systems to shut down and isolate the pipeline. A list of Incident Commanders are located in Table 4.3.4.

Energy Transfer has also installed area H₂S detectors throughout the receiving plant in key locations to detect possible leaks. Upon detection of H₂S at 10 ppm at any detector, a visible beacon is activated at that detector and an alarm is sounded. In the event of a detection of H₂S at 50 ppm levels at any detector, an evacuation alarm is sounded throughout the facility.

Each Energy Transfer field truck is equipped with a first aid kit, personal H₂S detector, and one (1) 20 lb. fire extinguisher.

4.0 Contingency Plan Provision

The purpose of this contingency plan is to provide an organized plan of action of alerting and protecting the public following the accidental release of a potentially hazardous volume of H₂S. This plan shall be activated immediately upon the detection of an accidental release of a potentially hazardous volume of H₂S per the definitions listed in Texas Rule 36 and New Mexico 19.15.11 NMAC. If the H₂S Contingency Plan is activated, the Railroad Commission of Texas (TX RRC) and/or New Mexico Oil Conservation Division (NM OCD) shall be notified as soon as possible, but no more than one hour after the plan activation. The H₂S Contingency Plan will be available for the TX RRC at the location indicated on the certificate of compliance, and it will be retained at this location, which will lend itself to the best activation of the plan. In New Mexico, the Plan will be provided and available for the NM OCD.

4.1 Railroad Commission of Texas & New Mexico Oil Conservation Division Determination Scenario

The H₂S concentration in the gaseous mixture will be determined in the pipeline in accordance with standards set by ASTM Standard D-2385-66, GPA Plant Operations Test Manual C-1, GPA Publication 2265-68, and in accordance with Rule 36 and 19.15.11 NMAC. If any of the following conditions are met in regard to the Radius of Exposure (ROE), the activation of the H₂S Contingency Plan will take place:

1. The 100 ppm ROE is in excess of 50 feet and includes any part of a “public area,” except a public road.
2. The 500 ppm ROE is in excess of 50 feet and includes any part of a public road.
3. The 100 ppm ROE exceeds 3,000 feet.

For all applicable operations, the radius of exposure will be determined as the radius constructed with the point of escape as its starting point and its length calculated using the following Pasquill-Gifford equations found in Table 4.1.1 below, or by other methods that have been approved by the TX RRC.

Table 4.1.1 Pasquill-Gifford Equations

Radius of Exposure (ROE)	Equation
100 ppm	$X^* = [(1.589)(\text{mole fraction H}_2\text{S}^{})(Q^{})]^{0.6258}$
500 ppm	$X = [(0.4546)(\text{mole fraction H}_2\text{S})(Q)]^{0.6258}$

*Radius of exposure (ft)

Mole fraction of hydrogen sulfide in the gaseous mixture available for escape

Maximum volume determined to be available for escape (ft³)

4.2 Jal Interstate System - Radius of Exposure

The volume used as the worst-case scenario escape route for the plant and pipeline is based on total escape of the maximum daily process rate of 18,000 MCFD from the piping that will contain 80,000 ppm of H₂S. This scenario is based on the unexpected release from a section of pipeline in the field. This is the worst-case scenario and the information is provided below in Table 4.2.1. Maps showing the worst-case ROE and public areas is provided in Appendix B.

Table 4.2.1 Jal Interstate System - Worst Case Scenario

Description	Equation	Radius of Exposure (ROE)
100 ppm Equation	$X^* = [(1.589)(0.08^{})(18,000,000^{})]^{0.6258}$	X = 9,545 ft
500 ppm Equation	$X^* = [(0.4546)(0.08^{})(18,000,000^{})]^{0.6258}$	X = 4,362 ft

*Radius of exposure (ft)

Mole fraction has been converted to a straight fraction for a more conservative number

Maximum volume determined to be available for escape (ft³)

Based on the data in Table 4.2.1 above, the 500 ppm ROE is in excess of 50 feet and includes public areas. These areas have been identified and are included in Table 4.4.2 and on the maps located in Appendix B of this plan. A list of public roads is identified in Table 4.4.3. The pipeline team and facility representatives are equipped with safety devices, such as H₂S monitors, to detect the escape of H₂S. Page

4.3 Instructions and Procedures for Alerting the Public

Appendix C is a detailed, internal Emergency Response Plan of Action in the event of an accidental hazardous release of H₂S. The public areas that could be impacted by a release along the system have been identified and are included on the maps located in Appendix B of this plan. A list of public areas are also listed in Table 4.4.2. These tables include map references for each area. In the event of accidental release of H₂S, Energy Transfer will activate this plan and notification procedure.

4.4 Contact Information

The H₂S Contingency Plan as described will be coordinated with the TX RRC/NM OCD, Texas/New Mexico State Police, and local county emergency response personnel. A copy of this plan will be submitted to the TX RRC, Texas State Police, and the Local Emergency Planning Committee (LEPC) for Andrews, Culberson, Gaines, Loving, Reeves & Winkler County, Texas. A copy of this plan will also be submitted to NM OCD, New Mexico Department of Public Safety, LEPC for Eddy & Lea County, New Mexico, and local fire departments.

The following information, located in Table 4.4.1, provides a list of external contact information that will be contacted via telephone and informed of the situation and activation of this plan. They will be instructed following the information located in Appendix C.

Energy Transfer shall make a priority of notifying the TX RRC and/or NM OCD upon a release of H₂S requiring activation of this plan as soon as possible, but no more than one hour after the plan activation, recognizing that a prompt response should supersede notification. Energy Transfer shall submit a full report of the incident to the TX RRC District 8 Office within ten days of any accidental release of H₂S gas of sufficient volume to potentially present a hazard and of any H₂S related incident, whether it be from an accidental or intentional release. For released in New Mexico, a full report of the incident will be submitted to the New Mexico Oil Conservation Division (OCD) within 15 day on Form C-141, following an accidental or intentional release.

5.0 Training Requirements

Training courses are provided to all plant personnel annually, pertaining to operational and plant topics. This training will be conducted prior to the introduction to the product. The safety training topics offered to all employees working on the pipeline system are provided in detail in Appendix E.

Initial training is to take place upon employment with the company and refresher training is to be conducted annually, or sooner, if there is a change in the plan or the need for additional training is determined. Only trained and certified personnel from Energy Transfer and any responding agencies will participate in the activation of this plan. All training for Energy Transfer personnel will be documented and training records will be maintained and on file at the Jal #3 Plant office.

Appendix C: Emergency Response Plan of Action

C.1 Emergency Incident Management

Emergency incident management will follow the Incident Command System (ICS) as described by the Federal Emergency Management Act (FEMA). The intent of using ICS for all emergency incidents provides automatic continuity with outside agencies and assists in establishing a “unified command” of the incident. Energy Transfer provides instruction and training on the ICS, which is beyond the scope of this plan.

C.2 Emergency Response Policy

It is the policy of Energy Transfer to take the necessary actions required to safeguard Energy Transfer personnel and the public from emergency incidents. Such emergency incidents may include fires, hazardous materials releases, and incidents resulting from natural hazards such as tornadoes.

In the event of an emergency incident, Energy Transfer personnel will take prompt action within their immediate work area to ensure that all appropriate Energy Transfer personnel, corporate personnel, and the public are alerted or notified that an emergency incident exists.

Whenever possible, Energy Transfer personnel will take immediate action to limit the effects of the emergency. All Energy Transfer personnel have the responsibility, if necessary, to immediately alert other Energy Transfer personnel that an emergency condition exists and to take appropriate action to protect life, property, and the environment. Emergency response actions taken by individuals should be within the limitations of their training, experience, and physical abilities. At no time will Energy Transfer personnel assume an unreasonable risk during an emergency response.

C.3 Equipment

The compressor stations are equipped with high and low pressure discharge shutdown devices, flares, relief valves, SCADA gas detection, fire extinguishers, wind sock, and H₂S monitoring. Flare with capacity up to 2mmscf/d is onsite or available. Two (2) bottle cascade system capable of working one (1) man with backup for 16 hours are located where needed.

Each Energy Transfer field trucks are equipped with first aid kits, personal H₂S detectors, and one (1) 20 lb. fire extinguisher. Personnel have cell phones for communication.

C.4 Evacuation Procedure

Evacuation may become necessary to protect personnel and the public from hazards associated with an incident. Orderly evacuation is essential to protect the public as well as Energy Transfer personnel and property. Energy Transfer personnel have reviewed the affected area for this plan and have determined the safe evacuation routes and assembly areas within the facility. The Incident Commander (IC) is responsible for notifying appropriate agencies and law enforcement officers that an emergency exists and help is needed. The IC is also responsible for notifying the Area Supervisor and Safety Manager immediately. Any evacuations or shelter in place of the public will be coordinated through the IC and local authorities, based on the current situation and air monitoring data. Energy Transfer personnel will establish a safe perimeter using their H₂S monitors. Trained personnel will continuously monitor H₂S concentrations, wind direction, and area of exposure and will advise public safety and emergency personnel on current conditions. The evacuation route will depend on wind direction at all times, so this must be noted prior to evacuation procedures being activated.

Roads and public areas around a pipeline release that is likely to cause an exceedance of 10 ppm of H₂S in the area, will be evacuated and secured in coordination with local emergency response agencies. Appropriate road-block locations and isolation zones will be established in coordination with these local authorities. The area will be isolated and secured from unauthorized entry. The County/Local Fire Department shall contact residents in the danger zone, based on the impacted area(s) utilizing the maps included in this plan. They should start with those in a downwind direction.

The Incident Command Post (ICP) will be established at one of the road block locations. The site will be dependent on wind direction. The Incident Commander (IC), after arriving at the ICP, has the authority to assess the situation and determine the severity level of the incident. The IC may establish a Unified Command with local authorities, depending on the severity of the situation or if requested. The IC may also determine that the H₂S Contingency Plan, as written, cannot be activated effectively and they may make decisions based on their authority.

C.5 Response Procedures for Unintentional Release of H₂S

If an H₂S leak is detected as a result of an accidental release, the following plan of action should be put into effect to adequately ensure the safety of Energy Transfer personnel, contractors, and the public. These response sequences should be altered to fit the prevailing situation and the site-specific requirements.

1. Upon detecting a leak, assess wind direction and immediately move away from the source and attempt to get out of the affected area by moving upwind and/or crosswind.
2. Alert other personnel in the area. Assist personnel in distress if this can be done without endangering yourself. Proceed to the designated assembly areas as quickly as possible.
3. If injury or death has occurred, immediately call emergency services (911).
4. If possible, take immediate measures by shutting in the pipeline to control present or potential discharge and to eliminate possible ignition sources. Auto control valve may have already activated to shut down flow in the pipeline.
5. Notify the supervisor, when possible. The supervisor or their designee will formally assume the role of IC. Until relieved by the supervisor, the senior employee having initially discovered the leak should fill the role of IC.
6. If the IC deems it necessary, ensure that steps are taken to stop traffic through the area, most importantly, highway traffic. Traffic Control points must be set up at the boundary outside of the ROE at the previously mentioned locations. The H₂S boundary shall be verified by using a calibrated H₂S monitor. Call all necessary emergency response agencies located in Table 4.4.1 of this plan for assistance and information, as required.
7. The IC will assess the situation and direct further action to be taken. If assistance is required from law enforcement, safety, or medical agencies, consult the emergency contact information located in Table 4.4.1 of this plan. All Energy Transfer personnel located in Table 4.4.4 and Appendix D should also be notified as soon as time allows. Utilize the emergency response forms in this Appendix to assist in documentation for the incident.
8. Ensure evacuation of all employees and visitors, and coordinate with emergency services.
9. Personnel equipped with SCBA and portable H₂S monitoring equipment will determine the cause and extent of the leak. Personnel should enter the area from the upwind of the release site. If a reading of 10 ppm or higher of H₂S is obtained, then back-up personnel equipped with SCBA will also be required.
10. If possible, de-energize all sources of ignition, using lockout/tagout procedures.

11. If needed, perform shutdown on appropriate equipment and systems.
12. Trained personnel will continuously monitor H₂S concentrations, wind direction, and area of exposure and will advise public safety and emergency personnel on current conditions.
13. As soon as possible, but no more than one hour after plan activation, notify the Railroad Commission of Texas/New Mexico Oil Conservation Division and the appropriate County LEPC using the contact information provided in Table 4.4.1 of this plan. At a minimum, the following information will be needed: Company name, facility name, responder name and number, location of discharge, description of affected area, concentration estimate, whether assistance is required from the agency.
