U.S. COMMISSION ON THE STATUS OF WOMEN
IN THE UNITED STATES

Washington, D.C.

Office of the Chairman

1000 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W.

Washington, D.C. 20004

The Commission on the Status of Women in the United States was established by Executive Order of President John F. Kennedy on April 11, 1961. The Commission was created to study and report on the status of women in the United States and to recommend ways to improve their status.

The Commission is composed of 15 members, including the Chairman, who is appointed by the President. The members are appointed for terms of three years.

The Commission's first report, "The Status of Women in the United States," was published in 1962. This report identified many of the problems facing women in the United States and recommended ways to improve their status.

The Commission has since published several other reports, including "The Status of Women in the United States: A Progress Report" in 1964, "The Status of Women in the United States: A Progress Report" in 1966, and "The Status of Women in the United States: A Progress Report" in 1968. These reports have provided a continuing record of the Commission's work and the progress made in improving the status of women in the United States.

Very truly yours,

Chairman
