Unit P, Section 3, T030N, R011W

The Bandy Com 100S is a Fruitland Coal and Fruitland Sand newdrill. A cased hole neutron log will be run prior to completion to identify the Fruitland Sand and Fruitland Coal zones. If the Fruitland Sand and Fruitland Coal horizons can be isolated, a separator test will be performed and the allocation will be assigned with results using the subtraction method applied to the rate. In the event that the Fruitland Sand and Fruitland Coal can not be tested separately, a volumetric calculation will be performed to determine the allocation percentages between the Fruitland Coal and Fruitland Sand. All documentation will be submitted to the Aztec NMOCD office.

Hello James and Ryan: (Please reply by Friday, March 20)

James: For this diversely owned well, please send a list of all parties noticed and copies of the certified receipts or certified receipt numbers.

Ryan: We realize that this may be a marginal well, but running only cased hole logs to split out Sand production from Coal production is a compromise from running the open hole logs (as you know). With the sands intermingle with the coals, separately testing may not be feasible. Please send more reasoning as to how the allocation can be done accurately so as to protect the diverse ownership in this well.

Hello William,

You are correct, utilizing open hole logs, specifically a neutron density and induction log, for allocating Fruitland Coal / Fruitland Sand wells is the best practice. Our procedure includes utilizing open hole logs from nearby wells, and correlating them via a cased hole neutron/gamma ray log to the new well. If open hole logs from nearby wells are not available or lack consistency, we do run open hole logs to help determine gas in place and the corresponding allocation. In this particular case, our reservoir engineer has requested running open hole logs due to the inconsistency with the logs from the two nearby wells. Since we are going to run open hole logs for this well, do you need me to revise the paperwork we sent you?
