

Davidson, Florene, EMNRD

---

From: Carrie Thompson [carribugthompson@gmail.com]
Sent: Monday, November 14, 2011 8:09 PM
To: Davidson, Florene, EMNRD
Cc: gwen@ogap.org
Subject: fracking opinion

RECEIVED OCD
2011 NOV 15 A 7:41

I have heard, that in 2005 Congress voted to exempt fracking from the Safe Drinking Water Act, yet it is my understanding that states have the authority to require disclosure. Colorado, Michigan, Texas and Wyoming have, or are in the process of, developing such rules. Pennsylvania asks companies to voluntarily disclose the content of fracking fluids.

My first preference would be no fracking at all, and that investments be put towards "greener energy". Since this is not going to happen as quick as I would prefer, I would like to request that you adopt what the Earthworks' OGAP has proposed, which is, that companies be required to:

- 1) notify landowners prior to a fracking operation and that companies be required to disclose all fluids and substances to be used in hydraulic fracturing operations to the surface owner before hydraulic fracturing begins;
- 2) disclose the type and volume of base fluids used in hydraulic fracturing, each additive used, the chemical ingredients in the additives, the additives' associated chemical abstracts service (CAS) registry numbers, and the actual or maximum concentration of each chemical ingredient used in hydraulic fracturing; and,
- 3) report the required information to the FracFocus website or to the successor of that website so that the relevant information will be available even if the FracFocus website is no longer operative.

New Mexico has tens of thousands of oil and gas wells that have been fracked and will be re-fracked in the future. New Mexico stands to have oil and gas development and new drilling for decades to come. Many wells are drilled near people's homes, ranches, in neighborhoods and on native and public lands. New Mexicans deserve to know what chemicals are being injected in the oil and gas wells near their homes and trucked through their neighborhoods and ranches.

Thank you for your time and consideration of my opinion.

Carrie Thompson
Tres Piedras, NM

"our lives begin to end the day we become silent about things that matter"

"everyday you are invited to make choices, live your values, change the world"

<http://www.veganvideo.org/>

http://www.metacafe.com/watch/2167449/global\_warming\_facts/