THE HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES

CHAPTER I. THE DISCOVERY OF THE COUNTRY

The first discovery of the continent of North America was made by Christopher Columbus in 1492. He sailed from Spain in search of a westward route to the Indies, and after a long and perilous voyage, he landed on the island of San Salvador in the Bahamas. This discovery opened up a new world of opportunity for the European powers, and led to the colonization of the continent.

CHAPTER II. THE EARLY SETTLEMENTS

The first permanent European settlement in North America was founded by John Cabot in 1497. He sailed from England in search of a northwestern route to the Indies, and landed on the coast of Newfoundland. This settlement was the first of many that followed, as European powers vied for control of the continent.

The first English settlement in North America was founded by Sir Walter Raleigh in 1585. It was located on Roanoke Island in the Chesapeake Bay. This settlement was the first of many that followed, as English colonists sought to establish a permanent presence in the New World.

The first Spanish settlement in North America was founded by Juan Ponce de Leon in 1513. It was located in St. Augustine, Florida. This settlement was the first of many that followed, as Spanish colonists sought to establish a permanent presence in the New World.

The first French settlement in North America was founded by Jacques Cartier in 1534. It was located on the St. Lawrence River. This settlement was the first of many that followed, as French colonists sought to establish a permanent presence in the New World.

The first Dutch settlement in North America was founded by Hendrick Hudson in 1614. It was located on the Hudson River. This settlement was the first of many that followed, as Dutch colonists sought to establish a permanent presence in the New World.

The first Swedish settlement in North America was founded by Carl Linnaeus in 1639. It was located on the Delaware River. This settlement was the first of many that followed, as Swedish colonists sought to establish a permanent presence in the New World.

The first German settlement in North America was founded by Johann Roloff in 1683. It was located in Pennsylvania. This settlement was the first of many that followed, as German colonists sought to establish a permanent presence in the New World.

The first Irish settlement in North America was founded by James Smith in 1789. It was located in New York. This settlement was the first of many that followed, as Irish colonists sought to establish a permanent presence in the New World.

CHAPTER III. THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR

The Revolutionary War was fought between the thirteen original colonies and Great Britain from 1775 to 1783. The war was fought over the issue of self-government, and resulted in the colonies gaining independence from Britain.
