BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT
WASHINGTON, D. C.

THE BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT

The Bureau of Land Management is a federal agency within the United States Department of the Interior. It is responsible for managing the public lands of the United States, which are lands owned by the federal government. The Bureau's mission is to protect and manage these lands for the benefit of present and future generations. This includes a variety of activities, such as land acquisition, land use planning, and land conservation. The Bureau also works to promote sustainable resource management and to provide for the needs of local communities. The Bureau's work is guided by the National System of Public Lands Act, which was passed in 1893. This act established the Bureau and gave it the authority to manage the public lands. The Bureau has since grown into a large and complex organization, with a wide range of responsibilities and a large staff. It is one of the largest federal agencies, with a budget of over $1 billion. The Bureau's work is essential to the health and well-being of the United States, and it is a source of pride for all Americans.
