

apart. This project was conducted on one sunny day. Surface visibility in the region, which, due to floral cover, ranged between 25-35% of the ground under dry soil conditions, made this the most practical methodology for effectively sampling the impact zone which will result from this project as planned.