Dear Sir:

Your C-126 requesting permission to run 540 barrels of load oil by the Texas-New Mexico Pipeline Company from your Brainerd #1, in the Loco Hills Pool is being held for further information. In explaining the source of the load oil on the lower part of the form you stated that the transfer was reported by letter to the Commission dated January 26, 1955, and we are unable to locate the letter. If you have a copy of such letter we would appreciate it very much if you will make us a copy and send to us.

Any time an operator anticipates the movement of oil from a lease by himself or anyone else other than the regular transporter it is necessary that a letter be written to the Commission stating the approximate amount to be moved and the date on which it will be moved. A copy of this letter must be sent to the transporter in order that he will be advised so that he may adjust his storage records accordingly.

Yours very truly,

OIL CONSERVATION COMMISSION

Figure 1 is a schematic representation of the experimental design. It shows a sequence of events: a subject is presented with a stimulus (a face), then a response is recorded (a button press), and finally, the subject is presented with a feedback (a green or red light). The sequence is repeated for multiple trials.

1. The first step is to determine the scope of the project. This involves identifying the goals, objectives, and deliverables of the project. It also involves determining the resources available and the timeline for completion.
