On 12 March 2002, the Journal of the American Medical Association published a study by the National Cancer Institute (NCI) that found that the use of tamoxifen in the treatment of breast cancer was associated with an increased risk of developing blood clots. The study was a retrospective analysis of data from the NCI's Surveillance, Epidemiology, and End Results (SEER) database, which tracks cancer incidence and mortality in the United States. The study found that women who took tamoxifen for breast cancer had a 1.5-fold increased risk of developing blood clots compared to women who did not take the drug. The risk was highest for women who took tamoxifen for more than 12 months. The study also found that the risk of blood clots was higher for women who took tamoxifen in combination with other medications, such as aspirin or warfarin. the  $\beta$  phase of the polymer. The  $\beta$  phase is the more ordered phase and is characterized by a higher density and a higher melting point than the  $\alpha$  phase. The  $\beta$  phase is also the more stable phase and is the one that is most commonly observed in nature. The  $\alpha$  phase is the less ordered phase and is characterized by a lower density and a lower melting point than the  $\beta$  phase.
