

were surveyed in two parallel transects spaced 15 meters apart. This project was conducted on one sunny day. Surface visibility in the region, which, due to floral cover, ranged between 15-35% of the ground under dry soil conditions, made this the most practical methodology for effectively sampling the impact zone which will result from this project as planned.