REPORT OF THE COMMISSION

1950

REPORT OF THE COMMISSION

1950

The Commission was organized by the New Mexico Legislature in 1949 to study the possibilities of cooperation between the United States and Mexico in the fields of science, culture, and commerce.

The Commission has held numerous public hearings and has received many suggestions from the general public. It has also conducted extensive research into the various fields of cooperation. The results of this research are presented in this report.

The Commission believes that there are many opportunities for cooperation between the United States and Mexico. These opportunities exist in the fields of science, culture, and commerce.

The Commission recommends that the United States and Mexico should take steps to increase their cooperation in these fields.

The Commission has found that there are many areas in which the United States and Mexico can cooperate. These areas include the fields of science, culture, and commerce. The Commission believes that cooperation in these areas will be mutually beneficial to both countries.

The Commission has also found that there are many barriers to cooperation between the United States and Mexico. These barriers include differences in language, culture, and government.

The Commission believes that these barriers can be overcome. It recommends that the United States and Mexico should take steps to increase their understanding of each other and to work together to overcome these barriers.

The Commission has also found that there are many opportunities for cooperation between the United States and Mexico in the field of commerce.

The Commission believes that these opportunities can be realized if the United States and Mexico take steps to increase their trade and investment.

The Commission has also found that there are many opportunities for cooperation between the United States and Mexico in the field of science.

The Commission believes that these opportunities can be realized if the United States and Mexico take steps to increase their scientific research and exchange.

The Commission has also found that there are many opportunities for cooperation between the United States and Mexico in the field of culture.

The Commission believes that these opportunities can be realized if the United States and Mexico take steps to increase their cultural exchange and understanding.

The Commission has also found that there are many opportunities for cooperation between the United States and Mexico in the field of education.

The Commission believes that these opportunities can be realized if the United States and Mexico take steps to increase their educational exchange and understanding.

The Commission has also found that there are many opportunities for cooperation between the United States and Mexico in the field of health.
