

This topographic map illustrates the Four Corners region, where the states of Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado, and Utah converge. The map is characterized by its detailed contour lines and shaded relief, highlighting the rugged terrain of the area. Key geographical features include the Colorado River forming the border with Arizona to the west and south, and the San Juan River flowing through the center. Major towns such as Shiprock, Farmington, and Navajo are labeled, along with the Navajo and Hopi Reservations. The map also shows the location of the Four Corners National Monument and the Navajo Reservoir. Elevation points are marked with numerical values, providing a clear indication of the region's topography. The map is oriented with North at the top, and the state boundaries are clearly delineated.
