RE: Report for Excavating, Transporting and Backfilling the Bisti Flare Pit #1

Dear Mr. Pope:

PSC is pleased to submit to El Paso Field Services (EPFS) this report summarizing closure activities at the Bisti Flare Pit #1 located behind EPFS's Chaco Plant.

BACKGROUND

PSC was contracted by EPFS in March, 2001 to abandon several injection points and monitoring wells and to excavate, transport and dispose of hydrocarbon-impacted soil and backfill the Bisti Flare Pit #1. Injection points and monitoring wells were abandoned in areas requiring access to perform excavation activities. All abandonments were performed in accordance with EPFS's well abandonment guidelines.

SUMMARY

On March 16, 2001, PSC mobilized to the Bisti Flare Pit #1 to perform abandonment procedures on several injection points and monitoring wells. The abandonments were required to gain access to work areas associated with the excavation process. All injection points and monitoring wells were abandoned following EPFS's well abandonment guidelines approved by the New Mexico Oil Conservation Division (NMOCD) in a letter dated March 26, 1998. The injection points were abandoned by cutting the well casing approximately 1 to 2 feet below ground surface (bgs) and pouring a fine granular bentonite material into the casing through a funnel and then hydrating the bentonite with potable water. The surface around the injection point was contoured to prevent ponding of runoff over the location of the injection point. The monitoring wells were abandoned the same as the injection points, except, expanding cement containing 3 to 5 percent bentonite was used to plug the well casing in place of the fine granular bentonite material used in the injection points. All documentation associated with the abandonment activities, including a list of the injection points and monitoring wells abandoned, is included in Attachment A.

Combining the Strengths of Philip Services Corp., Allwaste and Serv-Tech

On March 19, 2001, PSC mobilized to the Bisti Flare Pit #1 to begin the excavation activities. During the excavation process, PSC worked closely with Bob Sterrett of GeoAnalysis, Inc. (GeoAnalysis) who performed oversight of field activities, Bill Freeman of the Navajo Nation Environmental Protection Agency (NNEPA), and Jim Walker of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (USEPA). During the initial stage of excavating, it was agreed upon by Scott Pope of EPFS, Bob Sterrett of GeoAnalysis and Bill Freeman of NNEPA to terminate the vertical extent of the excavation at a depth of 20 feet bgs plus or minus two feet. The excavation started on the east side and proceeded to the west. A copy of the Pit Remediation Form is included in Attachment B and a site sketch labeled Figure 1 is included in Attachment C.

Extensive soil screening using a photoionization detector (PID) was conducted throughout the excavation process by GeoAnalysis. PID screening results ranged from 300 parts per million (ppm) to 3,000 ppm. Two composite soil samples were collected from the pit during the initial stage of the excavation to try to determine a correlation between the PID and laboratory analytical results. The samples, collected by GeoAnalysis, were submitted to Pinnacle Laboratories (Pinnacle) in Albuquerque, NM via PSC and analyzed for total petroleum hydrocarbons (TPH) using USEPA Method 8015 Modified and benzene, toluene, ethylbenzene and xylenes (BTEX) using USEPA Method 8021 Modified. One sample was collected from the southeast sidewall of the pit and the other was collected from the southeast bottom portion of the pit. The analytical results for the sample labeled SE Side Composite was 1.8 ppm for benzene, 47.6 ppm for total BTEX and 3,220 ppm for TPH. The PID reading for this sample was 2,500 ppm. The analytical results for the sample labeled SE Bottom Composite was 27 ppm for benzene, 305 ppm for total BTEX and 7,060 ppm for TPH. The PID reading for this sample was 1,900 ppm. Additional excavation of soil occurred in the southeast area to remove the soil with high TPH readings. One monitoring well (PZ-19) in this area was removed by excavation due to the presence of free phase hydrocarbons in the well. Additionally, PZ-04, PZ-05, PZ-20 and eight injection points on the east side and four injection points on the north side were also removed during excavation.

The final overall excavation dimensions were approximately 104 feet long by 70 feet wide by an average of 20 feet deep assuming all sides are equal distances. The actual final excavation varied in shape (see attached Figure 1). The final boundaries of the excavation were agreed upon by representatives of EPFS, NNEPA and the USEPA. Two composite verification samples were collected from the excavation prior to backfilling. A composite verification sample was collected from the bottom of the excavation and a composite verification sample was collected from eight locations around the excavation. Soil samples were collected from the corners and middle of each wall as shown in Figure 1. These samples were composited into one bag. The samples were separated into two portions in Ziploc™ bags and a headspace analysis was performed using a PID on a portion of each sample. The headspace result for the bottom composite sample was 2,072 ppm. The headspace result for the sidewall composite sample was 2,543 ppm. The remaining portion of the samples was submitted to Pinnacle and analyzed for BTEX using USEPA Method 8021 Modified and TPH using USEPA Method 8015 Modified. The bottom composite analytical results were 4.1 ppm for benzene, 100.7 ppm for total BTEX and 2,710 ppm for TPH. The sidewall composite analytical results were 3.7 ppm for benzene, 89.9 ppm for total BTEX and 2,460 ppm for TPH. Additional individual sidewall samples collected by GeoAnalysis were submitted to the laboratory via PSC, as shown in the laboratory report, but were not analyzed. Copies of all analytical reports are included in Attachment D.

All hydrocarbon-impacted soil excavated was transported to Envirotechs landfarm for treatment. Clean backfill was transported back to the site on the return trip from the landfarm. PSC estimates, based on bills of lading (BOL), approximately 6,048 cubic yards (cy) of hydrocarbon-impacted soil were excavated and transported offsite for treatment and approximately 5,904 cy of clean backfill material were returned to the site. The quantities reported are assuming an average of 18 cy per truckload as agreed by EPFS in their Request for Quotation (RFQ) dated January 30, 2001 and PSC's proposal dated February 16, 2001. Copies of BOL's are included in Attachment E. PSC also estimates approximately 1,215 cy of overburden was excavated and stockpiled, based on measurements agreed upon between GeoAnalysis and PSC. No significant amount of groundwater was encountered during excavation. A very small amount of water from a perched layer was encountered near the end of the excavation process.

At the conclusion of the excavation activities, the clean backfill soil returned to the site from the landfarm was placed in the excavation and compacted using a wheel loader. The backfilled excavation was contoured to divert runoff from rainfall away from the excavation location. The excavated area was seeded with a Bureau of Land Management (BLM) seed mix known as BLM seed mix #2. The seed was applied at a rate of 13 pure live seed (pls) pounds per acre. The species contained in this seed mix are: sunflower common, gramma blue, sage big, small burnet, wheat grass western, squirrel tail bottle, indian rice grass and antelope bitter brush. A copy of the seed mix specification used is included in Attachment F.

PSC appreciates the opportunity to provide professional services to EPFS. PSC looks forward to working with EPFS on future projects. If you have any questions or need additional information, please feel free to contact me at 326-2262.

Sincerely,

PSC
