Audra,

We had a meeting at our office with the OCD today and discussed what would be required to move forward with the Fanning. We will have to conduct some further delineation at the site and get our chloride numbers below 250 mg/kg (we are still high in a couple of areas). Given the landowner issues and shallow ground water Mike will want to remove as much of the contaminated material as possible. If the chloride impacts are extremely deep he will consider laying a liner to encapsulate the remaining chlorides. The depth at which we will be able to lay the liner (assuming we do so) will depend on the chloride concentrations throughout the soil profile as we delineate.

I think that our best course of action would be to mobilize our trackhoe and begin excavating the impacted area while completing the delineation simultaneously. This should save you some time and money on equipment.

If everything is ok with Pyote let me know and we can discuss timing and logistics moving forward. If you have any questions or concerns please let me know.

Respectfully,

Sheldon L. Hitchcock
