THE EFFECTS OF THE 2008 FINANCIAL CRISIS ON THE UK ECONOMY

1. INTRODUCTION

The 2008 financial crisis had a profound impact on the UK economy. It led to a sharp decline in GDP, a rise in unemployment, and a loss of confidence in the financial system. The government implemented various measures to stimulate the economy and prevent a deeper recession.

The crisis began in the US with the collapse of Lehman Brothers in September 2008. This led to a global financial crisis, with the UK economy being particularly hard hit. The UK government introduced a £200 billion rescue package in October 2008 to support the financial system and the real economy.

The impact of the crisis was felt across all sectors of the economy. The financial sector experienced a severe loss of confidence, leading to a credit crunch. The real economy also suffered, with many businesses closing and unemployment rising.

The government's response was aimed at stabilizing the financial system and supporting the real economy. It included measures such as the creation of the Financial Protection Fund, the introduction of the Bank of England's Asset Purchase Facility, and the implementation of the Comprehensive Spending Review.

The crisis also led to a loss of confidence in the UK government and the financial system. This was reflected in the UK's credit rating being downgraded by Standard & Poor's in August 2008. The government's response was seen as inadequate by many, leading to a loss of trust.

The crisis had a long-term impact on the UK economy. It led to a period of slow growth and high unemployment. The government's response was seen as a failure, leading to a loss of trust in the government and the financial system.
