REPORT OF THE COMMISSION ON THE 1968 ELECTION

The Commission on the 1968 Election was organized by the University of Chicago in the summer of 1968. Its purpose was to investigate the circumstances surrounding the election of Lyndon B. Johnson to the presidency. The Commission was composed of a number of leading scholars in the field of political science, and its report is a comprehensive study of the election process. The report is divided into several sections, each dealing with a different aspect of the election. The first section, "The Campaign," describes the activities of the major candidates and the role of the media. The second section, "The Election Process," examines the procedures for electing the president, including the role of the electoral college. The third section, "The Results," discusses the final outcome of the election and the factors that influenced it. The fourth section, "Conclusions," offers the Commission's final thoughts on the election and its implications for the future of the United States. The report is a valuable resource for anyone interested in the history of the 1968 election and the political process in general.
