THEORY OF THE EARTH

CHAPTER I

The Earth is a sphere, and its surface is covered by a thin layer of water, which is called the ocean. The land is divided into continents and islands. The atmosphere is the layer of gas that surrounds the Earth. The atmosphere is composed of various gases, including oxygen, nitrogen, and carbon dioxide. The atmosphere is responsible for the weather and climate. The Earth's interior is composed of the crust, the mantle, and the core. The crust is the outermost layer, and it is composed of rocks. The mantle is the layer below the crust, and it is composed of molten rock. The core is the innermost layer, and it is composed of molten metal. The Earth's interior is responsible for the magnetic field and the heat that drives the tectonic plates.
