DETAILED ACCOUNT OF WORK DONE AND RESULTS OBTAINED

6-5/8" 20# 10-thd. New Seamless casing was set in this well at 3806" and cemented by the Halliburton Method with 100 sacks.

Casing and fittings were tested with 1200# pump pressure and allowed to stand undisturbed for thirty minutes. No drop in pressure resulted so the cement was then drilled out of the casing and the same test of 1200# pump pressure was again applied and allowed to stand undisturbed for thirty minutes. No drop in pressure resulted so the drilling was then resumed.

REPORT OF THE NATIONAL ACADEMY OF SCIENCES

The National Academy of Sciences, established in 1863, is a private, non-profit organization that provides advice to the federal government on scientific and technical matters. It is composed of members who are elected by their peers for their distinguished contributions to the sciences. The Academy's primary function is to conduct research and to disseminate the results of that research to the public and to the government.

The following report is a summary of the work of the Academy during the year 1964.

The Academy's work is organized into four main areas: research, education, public affairs, and international relations. In the area of research, the Academy has conducted a number of studies on a wide range of subjects, including the environment, health, and the economy. In the area of education, the Academy has been active in promoting the teaching of science in schools and in the development of new educational materials.

In the area of public affairs, the Academy has been active in providing advice to the government on a number of issues, including the environment, health, and the economy.

In the area of international relations, the Academy has been active in promoting scientific cooperation between the United States and other countries.

The Academy's work is supported by a number of sources, including the federal government, private foundations, and the Academy's own funds.

The Academy's work is conducted in a number of ways, including through the publication of reports, the holding of conferences, and the conduct of research.
