1. The first step in the process of identifying and classifying information is to determine the source of the information. This is done by examining the document for any identifying marks, such as a date, a signature, or a stamp. Once the source has been identified, the next step is to determine the nature of the information. This is done by examining the content of the document and determining whether it is a report, a letter, or a memorandum. Finally, the information is classified based on its sensitivity. This is done by examining the document for any words or phrases that indicate its sensitivity, such as "confidential" or "secret".
