1. The first step in the process of identifying a problem is to determine the nature and scope of the problem. This involves gathering information about the problem and its context, and identifying the stakeholders who are affected by the problem. Once the problem has been identified, the next step is to analyze the problem and its causes. This involves identifying the underlying factors that are contributing to the problem, and determining the relationships between these factors. The final step in the process is to develop and implement a solution. This involves identifying the most effective and efficient way to address the problem, and putting the solution into practice. Throughout the process, it is important to monitor and evaluate the progress of the solution, and to make adjustments as needed.

1. What are the steps you follow to ensure that the
