THEORY OF THE EARTH

CHAPTER I

OF THE ORIGIN AND DEVELOPMENT OF THE EARTH

SECTION I. OF THE ORIGIN OF THE EARTH

101

The origin of the earth is a subject which has long attracted the attention of philosophers and astronomers. The various theories which have been proposed, and the progress of our knowledge on this subject, will be the subject of the following chapters.

The first question which presents itself is, whether the earth is a solid body, or whether it is composed of a fluid mass. The latter opinion is the most generally received, and is supported by many arguments.

SECTION II. OF THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE EARTH

CHAPTER II

OF THE ORIGIN OF LIFE

102

The origin of life is a subject which has long attracted the attention of philosophers and astronomers. The various theories which have been proposed, and the progress of our knowledge on this subject, will be the subject of the following chapters.

The first question which presents itself is, whether life is a property of matter, or whether it is a property of a spiritual substance. The latter opinion is the most generally received, and is supported by many arguments.

SECTION III. OF THE DEVELOPMENT OF LIFE

The development of life is a subject which has long attracted the attention of philosophers and astronomers. The various theories which have been proposed, and the progress of our knowledge on this subject, will be the subject of the following chapters.
