THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY

ASTOR LENOX TILDEN FOUNDATION
500 N. 5TH ST. NEW YORK, N.Y.
The New York Public Library, Astor Lenox Tilden Foundation, is a non-profit corporation organized under the laws of the State of New York. It was founded in 1808 by John Astor, Lewis Tilden, and James Lenox. The library is one of the largest and most important in the world, with a collection of over 5 million volumes. It is open to the public and provides a wide range of services, including lending, reference, and research. The library is also a major center for the study of New York City and its history.

The library is organized into several departments, each with its own staff and responsibilities. The main department is the circulating department, which is responsible for the lending of books and other materials. Other departments include the reference department, the research department, and the special collections department. The library also has a large staff of volunteers who help with various tasks, including shelving, labeling, and answering questions. The library is a very important part of the New York City community and provides a valuable service to the public.
