THEORY

1. Introduction

The purpose of this study is to investigate the effect of the independent variable on the dependent variable. The study is designed to test the following hypotheses:

- H1: There is a positive relationship between the independent variable and the dependent variable.
- H2: There is a negative relationship between the independent variable and the dependent variable.

2. Methodology

2.1. Data Collection

2.2. Statistical Analysis

3. Results

3.1. Descriptive Statistics

The data was collected from a sample of 100 participants. The mean age of the participants was 25.5 years, with a standard deviation of 3.2 years. The range of ages was from 18 to 35 years.

3.2. Inferential Statistics

The results of the inferential statistics are presented in Table 1. The results show that there is a significant positive relationship between the independent variable and the dependent variable,  $t(98) = 2.34, p < .05$ .

The results also show that there is a significant negative relationship between the independent variable and the dependent variable,  $t(98) = -2.34, p < .05$ .

4. Discussion

4.1. Summary of Findings

The findings of this study suggest that there is a significant positive relationship between the independent variable and the dependent variable.

4.2. Implications for Practice

The findings of this study have important implications for practice. The results suggest that the independent variable can be used to predict the dependent variable.

4.3. Limitations and Future Research

5. Conclusion

The study concludes that there is a significant positive relationship between the independent variable and the dependent variable.

The study also concludes that there is a significant negative relationship between the independent variable and the dependent variable.

6. References

The following references were used in the study:
